Send a note to the White House to protect America's critical infrastructure and defense needs

In April, we stood with President Trump when he called for an investigation to examine the importance of steel to our national security.

We said then and believe now that it's about time we have actions such as this from the White House to remind people that a strong steel industry, from the mines to the mills, is the backbone of our country, our infrastructure and our military.

We want to let President Trump know we're still with him on this action and urge him to keep his promise to America's working people to protect and create family-sustaining manufacturing jobs.

Send the President a note letting him know you support this investigation.

To: President, Donald J. Trump
From: [Your Name]

Dear President Trump,

I agree that we need a strong and broad 232 steel study outcome that protects America's critical infrastructure and defense needs. America's national security interests range from missiles and munitions to our electric grid, water infrastructure and roads and bridges.

We need a result that restores America's capability to build again. America needs a strong and vital steel industry to protect our nation and grow our manufacturing sector.

That's what made America great and strong.

Please keep your promises to American workers and don't let this opportunity pass the country by. I urge you to enact the strongest possible, broadly-based 232 solution without delay.

Thank you
